Dear Friends and Colleagues,

A new integrated cancer center, a healing garden, new technology and more patient- and family-friendly environments are some of the enhancements St. Charles was able to accomplish in 2014, thanks in large part to philanthropic giving from grateful patients, board members, physicians, employee caregivers, community leaders, corporations and foundations.

It is impossible to spend even an hour at a St. Charles hospital or clinic and not be moved by the triumphs and miraculous moments unfolding all around. St. Charles is known for the expertise and compassionate caring provided by our medical staff day in and day out. And, a patient-centered approach ensures St. Charles remains focused on providing an extraordinary level of service, safety and quality. In all things, we put patients and their well-being first.

Likewise, St. Charles Foundation takes pride in providing our donors with meaningful and important avenues for maintaining and expanding superior health care. In the following pages, you will see an overview of last year’s accomplishments and highlights guided by our vision of creating America’s healthiest community, together. The successes are both impressive and inspiring. Most importantly, however, they represent the hard work and dedication of thousands of donors and volunteers who are instrumental in helping St. Charles expand and advance patient care and improve the health of our community year after year.

We invite you to join us in creating the finest healing environment possible, right here at home. The well-being of our community will benefit from your generosity.

For nearly 20 years, Gary and Kay Craven were among the rare longtime residents of Central Oregon who were largely unfamiliar with St. Charles. They had always been in good health and fortunate enough not to need it.

The Cravens relocated to the area from Eastern Oregon in 1995 after a memorable vacation in Sunriver. They quickly became active members of the community as owners of Big Country RV and supporters of many charitable organizations over the years. But they had little contact with St. Charles.

Two years ago, the Cravens participated in St. Charles Foundation’s Intern for a Day (IFAD), an in-depth tour of the Bend hospital, and were impressed.

“I thought, what an awesome facility for the people in our community and how lucky we are to have a place that offers everything for so many in one place,” said Kay. “IFAD really opened my eyes to what’s right in our backyard.”

Last July, friend and St. Charles Foundation Board Member Chuck Chackel invited the Cravens to take a tour of the nearly completed St. Charles Cancer Center.
Though they hadn’t been directly affected themselves, they knew how cancer had impacted Chuck’s life. They were moved by his story as well as the stories of others — local residents traveling to Portland for treatment adding extra stress to what’s likely the most stressful time in their lives, patients who had to bounce between multiple locations for their various treatments and services.

They also heard the statistics. Nearly one in two of us will be diagnosed with cancer at some point in our lifetimes.

“After touring the Cancer Center, I felt it was a good addition to St. Charles and the community of Bend,” said Gary. “Cancer seems to touch so many lives.”

The Cravens made a gift of $25,000 to help complete the construction.

“We were wandering the halls thinking how blessed we were,” said Kay. As they passed the chemotherapy area, they noted how glad they were that they didn’t need to be in that room.

Just two weeks later, cancer would touch their lives directly. Having a comprehensive cancer center at St. Charles would take on new significance for the Cravens and their family.

“We didn’t give for that reason. We just knew there was a need, that it touches so many” said Kay. “It’s amazing how many lives cancer affects. Everyone has a story. Some good, some not so good.”

Over 500 individuals and organizations from our community joined the Cravens in donating to St. Charles Foundation’s Capital Campaign for the construction of the new St. Charles Cancer Center, each at their own levels and for their own reasons. The result is a state-of-the-art facility offering complete cancer care under one roof.

Though their donation was originally made with the community in mind, after firsthand experience at St. Charles, the Cravens are grateful for the comprehensive services that allowed for treatment and, ultimately, recovery right here at home.

Maybelle Clark Macdonald Fund: Finishing Strong

At the eleventh hour, the Maybelle Clark Macdonald Fund made a pivotal matching gift of $50,000 to the Cancer Center Capital Campaign. In a final push to reach St. Charles Foundation’s $5.7 million fundraising goal, this gift gave the campaign and our staff, board members and volunteers renewed energy, ultimately helping the Foundation exceed its goal and complete the construction of the new, comprehensive St. Charles Cancer Center.

For 16 years, Jeff Coughenour was a professional ski patroller, wilderness responder and EMT. The deep satisfaction he felt helping people who were injured at Mt. Bachelor inspired him to take his passion to the next level.

With the support of his wife, Susan, and two children, Gray and Claire, Jeff overcame the daunting prospect of fierce competition and a hard road ahead and was accepted to Central Oregon Community College’s nursing program.

In 2014, while working as a tech in the St. Charles Emergency Department to help finance his studies, Jeff applied for and was awarded an Arlene Carlton Nursing Scholarship. The program, administered by St. Charles Foundation, was established specifically to assist non-nursing St. Charles caregivers who are pursuing careers in nursing.

“Receiving the scholarship gave me more confidence in my choice to pursue a nursing degree,” said Jeff.

His wife could see how the acknowledgment of his hard work changed his resolve.

“Our little family has supported Jeff through his work, his classes and his ultimate acceptance into nursing school,” said Susan. “The $1,500 scholarship is a godsend for us. Just as important is the impact this recognition had on Jeff and, thus, our whole family. He is renewed in his purpose.”

Now in his second term, Jeff has been able to work toward his degree without a full-time job, thanks, in part, to the scholarship. He plans to stay in Central Oregon and aspires to work as an RN at St. Charles.

“He has a great big heart and is so giving and kind,” said Susan. “I am thrilled to see him receive the same treatment.”

And the circle of giving continues: Last November, Jeff donated a guided fly fishing adventure that was auctioned off at St. Charles Foundation’s 2014 Saints Gala for $1,000—money that will in turn help others.

For Every Heart Patient, a Journey

July 18 was just another beautiful summer day in Central Oregon for 50-year-old Redmond resident Cheryl Pattan. Until it wasn’t.

Upon returning home from her weekly spin class, she began experiencing severe chest pains. Immediately aware that something was very wrong, she called 911. That’s the last thing she would remember until she woke up days later at St. Charles Bend.

As Cheryl was talking to the dispatcher, she passed out. Her mother found her lying face down on the floor in her hallway with the phone just inches away from her hand. As the dispatcher was instructing her mother on what to do, officers from the Redmond Police Department arrived and started performing CPR until the paramedics got there.

“They tell me that my heart was shocked a total of seven times, as they would lose me then would get a pulse,” said Cheryl. Usually the procedure is performed a maximum of five times, but the paramedics continued because they saw hope.

Cheryl was taken to the St. Charles Redmond Emergency Department where a CT scan found that her main artery was blocked. She was rushed to St. Charles Bend for surgery to insert a stent.

From the Redmond ED to surgery in Bend and through recovery, home health care and rehab, St. Charles Heart Services helped Cheryl transition slowly and comfortably to regain her strength over the months following her surgery.

“I loved the cardiac rehab program. It contributed to saving my life and getting me back on track,” said Cheryl. “The classes were sensational and helped get my mind on healthy eating and exercise. The staff really made the difference. I think of them as family.”

To help ensure that all St. Charles heart patients receive the same exceptional care as Cheryl did, in 2014 St. Charles Foundation designated $1 million from an unrestricted estate gift to create the John D. Picchetti Endowment for Heart Services.

“I had some pretty amazing caregivers that I really received quality care from,” said Cheryl. “All of the medical staff were, each and every one, very caring.”
